PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

NANCY ETOK

I am truly honoured to have been elected as Interim President of Pauktuutit at our recent AGM. As I reflect on the past year, I am filled with pride and gratitude for the incredible work Pauktuutit has accomplished.

First and foremost, I want to extend my heartfelt thanks to Gerri Sharpe, our former president, for her exceptional leadership over the past two years. Under her guidance, Pauktuutit experienced tremendous growth and made significant strides in advancing our mission. Her dedication and vision have been instrumental in steering our organization forward, and we are deeply grateful for her contributions.

This year, we have seen our presence in national and circumpolar relations grow significantly. This increased visibility allows us to have a stronger impact on important policy matters that affect our communities. Our voice is being heard, and we are making a difference where it matters most.

We have also enjoyed a period of amazing collaboration. It has been wonderful to work alongside our partners in the Inuit Circumpolar Council (ICC) during our delegation to Ilulissat, Greenland, and to engage with the Inuit-Crown Partnership Committee (ICPC) in Nain, Labrador. We are excited to continue these valuable collaborations, particularly the great working relationship with Inuit Tapiriit Kanatami (ITK) as we focus on our shared goal of improving the lives of Inuit.

The culmination of our shelter initiative was a major highlight of this year. It is so inspiring to see these important projects come to fruition. These shelters and transitional houses will provide Inuit women with essential options for safety and support, and we look forward to watching their development with great anticipation.

The true highlight of the year was our 40th-anniversary celebrations in February. This milestone provided a unique opportunity to reflect on our journey and honour the remarkable individuals who have shaped Pauktuutit over the decades.

Past President Gerri Sharpe with Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, Minister Patty Hajdu, MP Mona Fortier, and Inuit leaders at the Inuit-Crown Partnership Committee (ICPC) meetings in Nain, Labrador.

Our anniversary events began with our AGM where we were joined by eight of our past presidents. It was truly moving to see these amazing women reconnect and share their personal stories and experiences. These moments of reunion and reflection were a testament to the enduring spirit of Pauktuutit and the strength of our community.

The celebrations ended with our 40th anniversary gala, a night that was both joyous and deeply meaningful. We were honoured to have Governor General Mary Simon, a dear friend and a symbol of leadership and strength, as our guest speaker. Her presence and inspiring words made the evening truly unforgettable. The gala was not just a celebration of our past, but a vibrant acknowledgment of our rich culture and history. It was a night filled with music, dance, and storytelling, reflecting the vibrant spirit of our Inuit heritage.

Additionally, we took great pride in announcing our history project, and the publication of an amazing book that documents and preserves the rich legacy of Pauktuutit. Entitled Respecting Tradition, Protecting Our Future, the project is a significant step in acknowledging the incredible work of those who have come before us and ensures that their stories and contributions are remembered. This initiative provides a valuable resource for our community and a tribute to our collective achievements. A final version is now available on our website - we hope you enjoy it.

As we move forward, I am reminded of the power of collaboration. Working together with our partners, our staff, and our communities, we will continue to build on our successes and strive for even greater achievements. Together, we are making a meaningful difference.

Warmest regards,
Nancy Etok
Interim President

PAUKTUUTIT'S PORTFOLIOS

Every department conducts its work through a range of activities to address the priorities and needs of Inuit women, their families, and gender-diverse Inuit. For more details and updates, visit our website at pauktuutit.ca

Violence, Abuse Prevention & Justice

The Violence and Abuse Prevention team addresses a wide spectrum of issues affecting the safety and well-being of women and children, including gender-based violence, Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls (MMIWG), policing, and justice.

United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP)

Pauktuutit continues to collaborate with Justice Canada on the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act (UNDA), with a focus on enhancing the safety and well-being of Inuit women. This year, Pauktuutit completed a legal analysis of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP), examining its specific implications for Inuit women. This analysis helps to clarify how UNDRIP can address and support their rights and needs.

To learn more about UNDRIP, its relevance and its potential impact on Inuit communities, go to www.pauktuutit.ca/undrip.

WHAT IS UNDRIP?

The "United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples" defines the rights that Indigenous peoples around the world deserve. UNDRIP is not a law, but it tells the Government of Canada how to make sure its laws do not harm Indigenous peoples and do protect their rights.

UNDRIP has 46 articles that define Indigenous rights. They include the right to:

- Be free and equal to everyone else.
- Live in a safe and appropriate house.
- Access services for your health.
- Live a life that is safe and without violence.
- Practice and protect your culture.
- Stay in your community and on your land.
- Have a spiritual connection to your traditional lands and waters.
- Have your voice heard in decisions that may affect your rights.

SELF-DETERMINATION
Indigenous peoples should have the power to make decisions for their own communities. They must be given it and agree to any decisions that affect them or their lands.

CULTURE
Cultures, language, and traditions must be recognized and protected. This includes ensuring that that culture is preserved and not replaced with non-Indigenous culture.

ENDING VIOLENCE
Indigenous peoples deserve a life free from violence and to be treated equally. They shouldn't experience violence or unfair treatment anywhere, including in hospitals, by police or by child welfare agencies.

UNDRIP defines the rights of all Indigenous peoples around the world. Now that UNDRIP has been accepted in Canada, it tells the government how rights specific to Indigenous communities and individuals should be included in its laws.

Red Amautiit Project

On May 5, Pauktuutit Inuit Women of Canada launched the Red Amautiit installation to honor Missing and Murdered Inuit women, girls, and gender-diverse people. The project features five handmade Amautiit, each crafted by an Inuk seamstress from different regions: Eunice Tunraluk, Arctic Bay, Nunavut; Heather Angnatok, Nain, Nunatsiavut; Shirley Elias, Inuvik, Inuvialuit; Sarah Samisack, Inukjuak, Nunavik; and our Elder, Nancy Pukinaq Aupaluktuq, Baker Lake, Nunavut. The collection was previewed at the Iqaluit Centennial Library and later displayed at the Nunavut Legislative Assembly.

Pauktuutit advocates for Inuit-led healing and culturally appropriate solutions to address gendered violence, focusing on prevention, new shelters, second-stage housing, and enhanced healthcare support.

Engaging Young Men and Boys in Inuit Parenting Life Skills

The Engaging Young Men and Boys (EYMB) initiative builds on the Engaging Men and Boys project, teaching parenting skills and promoting healthy relationships through cultural programming rooted in Inuit traditions. This approach aims to reduce gender-based violence by involving men in the conversation.

The Ajuqiqtuq Parenting Life Skills Toolkit aids facilitators in delivering workshops that challenge harmful gender norms and promote gender equality. Participants learn to maintain healthy relationships, manage anger, and handle parenting stress. Workshops have been conducted in Ulukhaktok, NWT, and Iqaluit, NU. Train-the-trainer sessions will continue into 2024-25 to expand the program's reach.

Health

Sexual and reproductive health remains Pauktuutit's primary focus across the department's health initiatives, ensuring a distinctions-based and gender-based approach in all areas.

National Sexual and Reproductive Health Programming

Pauktuutit is addressing critical sexual health issues like HPV, hepatitis C, and the emerging crisis of syphilis and congenital syphilis through active engagement with federal, provincial, territorial, and Inuit organizations. This included leading discussions on reproductive health rights at the Gender Equality Summit in Whitehorse and participating in a symposium on HPV elimination organized by the Urban Public Health Network and the Canadian Partnership Against Cancer.

Community Action Fund - Inuit Youth Sexual Health Project

Pauktuutit's health programs team held regional engagement sessions in Iqaluit, the Western Arctic, and Nunavik to develop Inuit sexual health resources. With input from youth and service providers and mapped national services, these sessions provided valuable insights that are being adapted into youth-centred supports. Additionally, Pauktuutit established "Innasaat Katimajit," a Sexual Health Youth Committee made of Inuit youth across Canada, to guide messaging and resource development.

CheckUp! Project

The CheckUp! project is an Inuit-specific initiative aimed at preventing sexually transmitted and blood-borne infections (STBBI) among Inuit youth. Through social media, the project empowers youth to navigate the healthcare system and normalize testing.

In February, Pauktuutit partnered with Native Montreal to host a land-based culture and arts retreat at Oka National Park. By featuring activities like sealskin sewing, throat-singing, and qulliq lighting, the retreat helped participants connect sexual health with body image, identity, and their relationship to the land. The weekend promoted healthy relationships, discussed gender, and worked to reduce the stigma surrounding sexual health.

Cannabis in Our Communities

After launching the Cannabis Harm Reduction Toolkit, Let's Talk about Ujarak, Pauktuutit held virtual and in-person engagement sessions, gathering insights that will be compiled into a final report to be released later this year. Pauktuutit also participated in an Inuit-specific meeting with Health Canada's Expert Panel reviewing Cannabis Legislation in April and attended the first Ungammuataq Conference on Substance Use and Addictions at the Isuarsivik Recovery Centre in Kuujjuaq, Nunavik, in June.

Cancer

In November, Pauktuutit visited Inuvik to discuss cancer care experiences and introduce the Inuusinni Aqquusaqtara - My Journey toolkit. The visit aimed to facilitate knowledge sharing, brainstorming, and advocacy among Inuvialummiut and service providers, while also providing a platform for cancer patients and their caregivers to share their experiences.

Midwifery

In Spring 2024, Pauktuutit released the report Improving Access to Sexual and Reproductive Health Services across Inuit Nunangat, based on findings from the National Inuit Midwifery Forum held in March 2023. The report reaffirms Pauktuutit's commitment to restoring birthing practices in Inuit communities and outlines a pathway forward for midwifery in Inuit Nunangat. Pauktuutit is also developing a National Inuit Midwifery Framework to guide the re-establishment of traditional Inuit midwifery practices and education programs across the region.

Social and Economic Development

Pauktuutit's Social and Economic Development team has a broad mandate covering various social and economic issues, including political equality, women's leadership, housing, early learning and childcare, and national and international engagement.

Poverty Reduction

Pauktuutit has contributed to efforts to reduce poverty among Inuit women, children, and families in Canada. By working with the Inuit Tapiriit Kanatami (ITK) on the Inuit Nunangat Poverty Reduction Strategy, Pauktuutit helped ensure that the strategy addressed gender considerations. The strategy's emphasis on "Respect for Gender Diversity" reflects the impact of these advocacy efforts.

Inuit-specific Shelters and Transitional Housing

Pauktuutit Inuit Women of Canada led advocacy efforts to support the development of shelters and transitional housing for Inuit women, children, and gender-diverse individuals escaping gender-based violence in both urban areas and Inuit Nunangat. The program has 12 shelters and eight transitional housing projects in various stages of the Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation process.

Inuit Nunangat: Projects are underway in Sanikiluaq, Pangnirtung, Baker Lake, Gjoa Haven, Puvirnituq, Aimagunga, Ulukhaktok, and Tuktoyaktuk. In Nunatsiavut, the CMHC is reviewing applications for a shelter in Makkovik and transitional housing in Nain.

Urban Areas: Shelters and transitional housing initiatives are progressing in Ottawa, Montreal, and Winnipeg.

With the application process closed, Pauktuutit will conduct a strategic review of its family violence prevention approach and housing advocacy. This includes assessing past housing policies, their impacts, and government investments over the past decade. Additionally, Pauktuutit will study successful low-income and Indigenous housing strategies, both domestically and internationally, using a gender-based perspective to guide future advocacy for Inuit women.

Early Childhood Development and Education

Pauktuutit works to enhance the lives of Inuit children, women, and families through policy review, strategic collaboration, and representation. By participating in the Inuit Early Childhood Development Working Group (IECDWG) and the National Inuit Committee on Education (NICE), Pauktuutit has contributed to shaping the National Strategy on Inuit Education and early childhood development policies.

Inuit Women in Business workshop focussing on business start-up and expansion.

Inuit Women in Business Network (IWBN)

Pauktuutit's Inuit Women in Business Network (IWBN) provided community-specific programming both virtually and in person. Recent successful workshops in Pangnirtung and Cambridge Bay focused on business start-up and expansion. The IWBN website now features new resources on budgeting, operations, marketing, grant writing, hiring practices, and federal procurement opportunities. These resources and other research deliverables were presented to the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency (CanNor) at their national retreat in Ottawa in January 2024.

Reaching Home Research

The research on Urban Inuit Homelessness and Housing Needs, completed in March 2024, sheds light on the challenges faced by Inuit women and families in urban areas. It identifies gaps in infrastructure and funding that limit service scope and highlights the unique experiences of Inuit women experiencing homelessness in urban settings across Canada. This research supports the efforts of Inuit advocacy partners and has impacted the development and funding for new Urban, Rural, and Northern housing investments by CMHC and the federal government.

Inuit-Specific GBA+ Framework

Pauktuutit, representing Inuit women in Canada, advocates for policies and services that address the unique needs and experiences of Inuit women, girls, and gender-diverse individuals. To support this advocacy, we have introduced our Inuit-specific Gender-based Analysis Plus (GBA+) Framework, rooted in Inuit Qaujimagatuqangit principles. This framework ensures that policies and programs consistently reflect an Inuit-specific GBA+ perspective, acknowledging the strengths and capabilities of Inuit communities.

We are also developing culturally responsive learning modules for staff training, combining workshops with online self-guided options. These modules aim to enhance the understanding and application of our GBA+ framework.

Communications Division

Over the past year, the Communications Division has been integral in supporting our board and all other divisions with communications. From drafting key messages and designing promotional materials to coordinating media outreach and managing event communications, we ensured that Pauktuutit's initiatives received the visibility and support they needed to succeed.

Our media relations efforts have significantly amplified the voice of Inuit women. We established and nurtured relationships with key media outlets, increasing coverage of our work, community events, and policy initiatives. By addressing critical issues such as gender-based violence, housing challenges, and access to healthcare, we ensured that the unique perspectives and experiences of Inuit women were represented at all levels.

Collaboration with government counterparts has strengthened our advocacy efforts. Working closely with various governmental agencies, we aligned our communication strategies and maximized the impact of our joint initiatives, advancing our policy goals and securing support for our programs.

Our social media strategy has been a cornerstone of our communication efforts. We implemented strategic campaigns to enhance our reach and effectiveness, raising awareness about critical issues and engaging our community in meaningful conversations. Through engaging content and multimedia storytelling, we saw a substantial increase in followers and engagement across all platforms.

Translation and the use of Inuktitut language remain central to our work. We prioritize ensuring that all communications are available in Inuktitut to honour and preserve our culture.

One of our major achievements this year was the successful organization of our 40th-anniversary community events and gala. These events celebrated our rich history, honoured our founders and showcased the achievements of Inuit women. The gala brought together community members, stakeholders, and supporters in a beautiful celebration of Pauktuutit.

The Communications Division also spearheaded the History Project, which included interviews with past presidents, research on Pauktuutit's history, and the layout and design of the project. This initiative not only preserves Pauktuutit's legacy but also inspires us to continue our work for the betterment of Inuit women.

Through these initiatives, the Communications Division has played a pivotal role in advancing our mission and strengthening our community connections. We look forward to building on these successes in the coming year, continuing to advocate for and empower Inuit women.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING 2023-2024

On February 14 and 15, 2024, Pauktuutit Inuit Women of Canada hosted its Annual General Meeting in Ottawa, marking the start of our 40th anniversary celebrations. This milestone event brought together past presidents and key contributors to reflect on Pauktuutit's significant journey.

The 40th Annual General Meeting was opened by Past President Gerri Sharpe, who highlighted the impact the organization has had over four decades in empowering Inuit women. She emphasized the importance of the contributions made by past presidents and delegates in shaping the organization's legacy. Gerri's reflections highlighted Pauktuutit's historical milestones and the wisdom and commitment of past leaders in guiding the organization.

On the second day of the AGM, Hon. Gary Anandasangaree, Minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations, addressed attendees, reflecting on his journey since being elected in 2015. He emphasized the significant progress made in rebuilding trust with Indigenous communities and the evolving dialogue on justice and action. Minister Anandasangaree highlighted that the Calls to Action are no longer just aspirational but are essential for driving real-life changes. He also stressed the importance of evolving relationships with Indigenous communities and the ongoing need to address persistent issues and systemic oppression.

Honouring Pauktuutit's Past Presidents: The History Project

Anita Pokiak presented the history project “Respecting Traditions, Protecting Our Future,” a commemorative book. Marking Pauktuutit’s 40th anniversary, the colourful publication reveals the organization’s history and achievements through the perspectives of past presidents. Anita highlighted the pivotal roles of Mary Sillett and Lizzie Ittinuar in establishing Pauktuutit, celebrating their foundational contributions. The History Project emphasizes the courage, perseverance, and wisdom of past presidents in addressing the needs of Inuit women. “Respecting Tradition, Protecting Our Future,” is now available in both digital and printed formats.

Empowering Indigenous Rights: UNDRIP and UNDA Presentations and Discussions

Shelagh Roxburgh from Pauktuutit’s Policy team presented on the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP), focusing on principles such as self-determination, recognition as distinct peoples, and free, prior, and informed consent. The discussion addressed the challenges and opportunities in implementing UNDRIP and highlighted the need for women’s associations like Pauktuutit to be included in decision-making and resource distribution.

Following this, Janine Stingel discussed the United Nations Declaration Act (UNDA), which incorporates UNDRIP into Canadian federal legislation. This presentation emphasized the importance of amplifying Indigenous women’s voices in the interpretation and application of UNDRIP and the necessity of creating inclusive and accessible approaches to rights and resources for Indigenous communities. Both discussions reinforced the critical role of effective implementation and representation in advancing Indigenous rights.

In conclusion, Pauktuutit's 40th Annual General Meeting was a heartfelt celebration of our commitment to empowering Inuit women and gender-diverse individuals. We celebrated our achievements, advocated for their rights, and honoured their contributions. As we look forward to the next forty years, we are inspired by a renewed sense of purpose and determination to advance the rights and well-being of those we represent.

This event was a wonderful opportunity to honour both past and present leaders and reflect on our shared achievements. The evening featured traditional Inuit games, the Best Bannock contest, and a Parlak celebration recognizing those who caught their first wildlife in the past year. Guests enjoyed samples of country food, seal carving, and lively music. We deeply appreciate everyone who joined us, making the celebration truly special and showcasing our strong community spirit. Congratulations to Jeannie Okalik, who was named Best Bannock Maker at the event! We thank our major sponsor, Canadian North, for providing a return ticket to Iqaluit as the prize. Past President Gerri Sharpe presented the award to Jeannie Okalik, alongside Jason Kilabuk from Canadian North. Jeannie's winning Bannock will be featured in the upcoming Pauktuutit cookbook.

The History Project Respecting Tradition, Protecting Our Future

Pauktuutit's History Project celebrates the remarkable legacy of our past leaders and founders, whose unbreakable spirits have shaped our journey. As we commemorate our 40th anniversary, we express profound gratitude and deep respect for those who have guided us through the decades.

This project offers an in-depth overview of Pauktuutit's history, as told by the courageous women who led the way. Through interviews, recollections, and shared memories, we honour the vision, dedication, and commitment of our past presidents and board members. Their contributions laid the strong foundation upon which we continue to build today.

More than just a book, this history project is a tribute to those who have tirelessly worked to empower Inuit women and advance our collective advocacy efforts. We encourage you to read it and immerse yourself in the powerful stories of strength, leadership, and unwavering dedication that continue to inspire our work.

INUIT WOMEN OF THE YEAR

Every year, Pauktuutit's Board of Directors chooses remarkable women to be honoured with the titles of Inuk Woman of the Year and Young Inuk Woman of the Year.

This year, past President Gerri Sharpe, presented the Inuk Woman of the Year and Young Inuk Woman of the Year awards at Pauktuutit's Annual General Meeting on February 14 in Ottawa. The winners joined us virtually to receive their awards.

Alyssa Carpenter, Young Inuk Woman of the Year

Alyssa Carpenter, originally from Inuvik, has been named this year's Young Inuk Woman of the Year.

Alyssa is a northern social worker currently residing in Whitehorse, Yukon, with her partner and daughter. Most of her work experience is within the grassroots and non-profit sector, working with various levels of government in both the Yukon and Northwest Territories, primarily with Arctic and Northern Indigenous youth.

Alyssa is the leading founder and Project Director of the Western Arctic Youth Collective, a youth-led organization based in Canada's Western Arctic region that focuses on empowering young people and promoting positive change in the community through on-the-land programming. Alyssa is a Laureate of the Arctic Inspiration Prize Youth Category for 2020.

Janine Lightfoot, Inuk Woman of the Year

Janine Lightfoot from Makkovik, Nunatsiavut, was named this year's Inuk Woman of the Year.

Janine is a passionate advocate for revitalizing Inuit language and culture in an area deeply affected by language erosion. Janine holds a degree in Political Science and Native Studies and completed the Aurniarvik Program at the Pirurvik Centre in Iqaluit, where she resided and worked for several years, and whose work inspires Janine to find ways to incorporate Inuktitut into all areas of her life.

In addition to her academic achievements, Janine's efforts include initiating free weekly Inuktitut classes for learners, organizing enriching workshops centred around hunting, culture, and revitalization, and establishing a memorial bursary for high school students prioritizing Inuktitut, all done in loving memory of her Anaansiak, Clara Ford. Currently, Janine resides in Makkovik with her family, including their fierce and thoughtful 11-year-old, Panik Aaju Morgan, who dreams of becoming an astronaut.
